

SARSAS – SAMPLE COPY

Extract of the leaflet copy:

Sexual Consent: What's It Got To Do With Me?

Well, if you have sex or want to have sex, it's got everything to do with you.

Making sure you get and give consent before having any kind of sex with another person really matters.

You don't need to have to have a sit-down chat about it if you don't want to – but consent should always be clear.

Sex is only sexy when it's between two people who have given their consent. Unless you both want it and are both capable of making a free choice, you are breaking the law.

If it's not your body, it's not your decision. Make sure you 'get' consent. Know when to Pause, Play and Stop.